The other day I went up the calley. I took a long walk, and toward evening made my way to the depot.

A little footnore and weary I sat down, then unthinkingly I turned to look at the mountains. The sun was setting and the upper settaled peaks of the Organs were lathed in rich crimson. The whole of those spiendid rocks was gorgeous, and could but look and look fascinated.

Then slowly the colours toned down, and in a f-w minutes the heights took on a cold drab grey.

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the Eng lish to combat this insidous disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In English change the second that the second dead noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment ic such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain I on ef Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day. Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—Advertisement

Drawing of Hends.

To simplify things in this art talk let us deal strictly in this article with the drawing of heads. The painter, whether he is a realist or an idealist, must first know thoroughly the bony structure of the head, the construction of the skull and its principal characteristics, the shape of the dome of the skull, the position of the eye sockets, the structure of the law and the check bones and the temple's hollows. Then he must know the position and function of the muscles of the head and face and their relation to each other when in action. He must also know the construction of the features of the face, which are to the rest of the head like ornamental trimming, in comparing their importance with the big construction points of the skull.

A Greatly Veed Word.

Construction is a greatly used word in art. It means the way the thing The regular meeting of the Temple Mt. Sinai Sewing Circle was held Monday afternoon in the temple parlors. The time was spent in sewing for the poor. Befreshments were served later in the afternoon by the following hostesses: Mesdames Martin Zielonka, A. Mathias, Carrie Freudenstein, J. E. Winner, Frank Rosen, and Abe Harris. The circle will meet again on Nov. 27. Mrs. J. I. Driscoll will entertain the members of St. Patrick's Altar guild on Priday afternoon at her home, 1142 Nevada street

Construction is a greatly used word.

A Greatly Vsed Word.

Construction is a greatly used word in art. It means the way the thing is built and embraces proportion and perspective. Knowledge of this must be so thorough that it becomes subconscious, before it can be used effectively by the painter. This is what makes the study of anatomy so vitally important for an artist, so that he will absolutely know the construction of the numan figure. Most painters also model a little. The bits schools all recommend the study of sculpture to perfect the painter's comprehension of the construction of the figure by working in the round. Instend of in the fiar as a painter must do on canvas. The painter has to give the appearance of the roundness and solidity of the head on his flat canvas. The sculptor constructs the round head as it is. Now all this knowledge, as can easily be realized, may only be acquired by long, continued study, application and observation.

Now it stands to reason that until

Col. Charles C. Weybrecht, of the Eighth Ohio infantry, was host Saturday night at Hotel Paso del Norte at a beautifully appointed dinner. His guests were Mrs. Arthur Murray, of Washington, D. C. Capt. and Mrs. H. Conger Pratt and Capt. and Mrs. Hillam B. Graham.

An informal dinner was given Monday night in the private dining room of Hotel Sheldon, by a group of the second South Carolina Infantry. Mrs. Harry Pateman chaperoned the young people. The guests were Misses Mahel O'Connor, Constance Pateman, Louises Sanburn, Sybil Shedd and Joy Crutch-field. The hosts were Roderick Molvei, J. Ervin, Rodney Gennett, C. Mayer, B. Edwards, A. Jones and D. Harlle, all of Darlington, S. C.

The Tuesday Luncheon club was entertained at the Harvey house this afternoon by Mrs. T. M. Waller. Autumn leaves in bright colors and the autumn fruits in an attractive busket formed the table and the place cards were about the table and the place cards were ornamented in Thanksgiving season. Pumpkin colored candles were about the table and the place cards were ornamented in Thanksgiving day designs. The suests were Mesdames Will T. Owen, Frank A. Spence, Claude B. Hudspeth, George B. Eyan, Arthur J. Brawing Ideal Heads.

Now it stands to reason that until a painter has grasped all this necessary knowledge, he is not in a position to draw so called ideal heads, which is the term people usually apply to heads that are not copies and also are not studies from either a cast or the live model. To a very great extent, memory is mistaken for imagination. The two things are distinctly different, in drawing a head without a model the artist is in reality drawing from memory-perhaps not from any one particular head, but he is using his momory of the way heads and features are formed. If his memory is not trained and stored with a definite amount of knowledge of the construction of the head, his drawing will be weak and faulty in construction.

Hard, Continuous Work.

head, his drawing will be weak and faulty in construction.

Hard, Confineous Work.

All of the artists who have attained success have done so through hard and continual work and persistent, persevering study and analysis of their observations from the human head direct. Most of these artists have enjoyed the study and the analysis of humanity so that they seldom do any purely imaginative idealistic work, preferring to record their impressions of people as they find them. There is no growth for the student in doing imaginative idealistic work, preferring to record their impressions of people as they find them. There is no growth for the student in doing imaginative ideal heads because he but draws upon his already scanty store of information as to the construction of the head and adds nothing to this store by personal observation directly from nature.

Training the Memory.

Now the training of the memory is a most important thing. It is something, too, that can be cultivated by application and work. William Merritt Chase, whose recent death is a big loss to the art world, used to tell his students of the way he trained his memory. After working in his studio from living models all day, he would, upon going home at right, endeavor to reproduce from memory the drawings he had made from his models in the studio the next morning and check the memory work with the model work to find where his observations had

He drawing or painting of so | fallen short. He eventually trained his memory so that the two dra would check up exactly. People Very Unobserving.

I do not mean to imply that it is not the most important thing to think and work originally because originally and individually are most important art essentials. But originality and this co-called "ideal" work is very, very different.

Originality is the ability to see and do things from a viewpoint different from the ordinary and the average idealism in its true meaning is to exait and to beautify an ordinary thing to a higher sphere. Realistic painting is no record the brutal truth institute he same, but to decorate it and embellish it and beautify it. Now hack of all of these styles of work must be the bed rock foundation of knowledge and experience.

Peaple Very Unobserving.
